

A large, light gray rectangular area occupies the center of the page, serving as a writing space. It is defined by a diagonal line on its right side. Within this gray area, there are seven horizontal black lines spaced evenly, providing a guide for writing text.

